

Workshop - Indigenous Cultural Safety

Mother Earth Whispers

A 2 part workshop series identifying historical legislation and colonial events impacting current challenges Indigenous people face in Western Culture, an overview of Residential School and the residual impact inter-generationally. This powerful workshop exposes Canadian history through visual and experiential learning techniques influencing comprehension from a mind, body and spiritual approach rather than an intellectual approach, which often minimizes the effects. Further, this workshop includes an Indigenous world view, shared values and principles while offering the opportunity for participants to reflect on unknown personal biases.

*sessions will build upon each other

Part 1 - January 22, 2021 9-10:30am

Part 2 - January 29, 2021 9-10:30am

Workshop - How To Be An Active Bystander

Alden E. Habacon

This workshop aims to empower participants to be active bystanders as members of the community: allies who are prepared to respond and disrupt the impact of non-inclusive language and behavior. By refusing to be passive observers, active bystanders create safer environments in the workplace and in the community at large. The session will also provide specific strategies for confronting peers, including: How to overcome fear of retaliation or embarrassment; Questions to ask when considering intervention; Reframing intervention as personal, caring, or non-critical; Group intervention after repeated patterns of inappropriate behaviour.

Workshop - Supporting Diverse Youth

Cicely Blain Consulting

Part 1 - A timely and insightful investigation into diversity and inclusion that explores language, unconscious bias and respectful team building. Learn about the importance of diversity and inclusion initiatives and strategies.

Part 2 An informative workshop on LGBTQ+ identities that educates participants on vocabulary, appropriate language, and respectful conduct around gender and sexuality. This workshop is a wealth of information about gender diversity, sexual orientation, pronouns and strategies for meaningful inclusion and helps to create safe environments for those within the LGBTQ+ community.
